UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION of 1900

LES INVALIDES

The entrance n^o 26 is one of those preferred by the public in visiting the Exhibition. (see plan, page 2 and 3).

This grand entrance is enclosed by two sumptuous buildings, and the gates once passed, the eye is charmed by the perspective; the rue du Mobilier, being so to say continued by the bridge Alexander the IIIrd, across the Seine, until it merges into the magnificent Avenue Nicolas II.

PALAIS DU MOBILIER

To the right and left, arise six palaces exhibiting the Mobilier, which gives the name to the thoroughfare, and comprises artistic and decorative furniture of every description, the Various Industries of France and other countries, and the productions of French National Manufactories.

Amidst the details of an architecture at once ingenious and beautiful, is found an infinite variety of decoration.

At the end, the Esplanade opens in the form of a semicircle, which, in its turn, allows exit by porticoes surmounted by circular frontons with escutcheons displaying the arms of all the towns of France.

On one side, will be found the Gobelins with their renowned tapestries; on the other, Sèvres and its porcelaines together with ceramics and in front of each of these palaces, is an exquisite garden of roses.

Continuing and arriving at the angle of the Esplanade, close to the quai d'Orsay, we find, on the right, one of the principal stations of the new line specially constructed for the Exhibition by the Compagnie de l'Ouest.

PALAIS DES INDUSTRIES DIVERSES elements, shows what may be evolved from a style of simple lines, which, whilst conserving all their purity, are susceptible of infinite enrichment. The artistic colouring accords throughout with the architecture.

The entrance is quiet yet elegant; the Petit Salon intime, draped with indian silk and lace, the Grand Salon, in Aubusson, with bow window of yellow damask; and the Chambre Louis XVI, furnished with a style of tranquillity befitting a chamber of repose, appears exquisite with its bed surmounted by a delicately decorated canopy.

The Boudoir, in tulle and lace, resembles that of Marie Antoinette of which the taste has revived; there is nothing more fashionable.

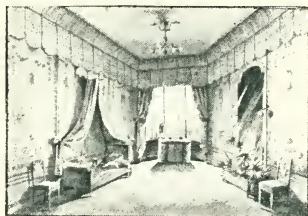

The lounging

chair for repose, the “Duchesse” toilet-table complete a perfect ensemble.

These several interiors, like all other furniture; carpets, tapestries and ornamental seats produced by the Bon Marché, either in the attractive styles of modern art or reproducing the chief works of ancient art, have originated and been designed by the best artists and upholsterers of the House: their entire carrying out being effected in its workshops by specially chosen workmen.

Facing this gay summer residence, is the “ Palais des Industries Diverses ” and, in Class 71, on the first floor, is a further Exhibition of the artistic furniture produced by the Bon Marché.

This Exhibition is composed of a Salon Régence, with seats of carved wood, gilded and covered in Aubusson.

One cannot but admire the exquisite delicacy of the tapestry flowers and their delicate designs.

Adjoining this Salon, worthy of the most aristocratic residence, a corner “ Modern Style ” vividly attracts the attention of amateurs of artistic furniture and decoration by its somewhat unexpected appearance and by the perfect taste which presides over its arrangement.

The Bon Marché in fact introduces to the public a style of furnishing at once comfortable, useful and artistic, which the firm’s annex, recently constructed in the Rue du Bac, and specially reserved for furniture, carpets and bedding, allows them to exhibit continually in a variety of combinations.

On the side of the pavilion of the Bon Marché and ascending the avenue, is found the Musée des Fêtes locales, the Maison Bretonne, the Mas provençal, the Maison Arlésienne and the Auberge des Adrets.

COIN « MODERN STYLE »

LES CHAMPS-ÉLYSÉES

The principal entrance to the Exhibition is that on the Place de la Concorde, at the end of the “ Quai de la Conférence ”.

PORTE BINET

This point was chosen on account of its vicinity to the centre of Paris, and the numerous lines of tramways, omnibuses and boats which pass there, as well, as that all around, broad avenues allow easy approach to carriages and foot passengers.

From the commencement, this monumental entrance to the Exhibition has been designated “ Porte Binet ” from the name of its architect René Binet, painter and sculptor, who has ransacked Italy, Spain and the Orient, for the secret of harmonising and contrasting colours.

On leaving the Avenue des Champs-Élysées, at the point where formerly stood the Palais de l'Industrie, and proceeding towards the Seine, on the right, is found the Palais des Beaux-Arts; to the left, with less lofty constructions, is the Petit Palais which is the palace of the “Exposition retrospective”, exhibiting as it does the entire history of French art.

These two buildings, together with the monumental bridge, which they precede, are the permanent constructions of the Exhibition.

Their arrangement will allow in the future of the same usages as those of the former Palais de l'Industrie.

Porticoes, covered recesses, statues, and flower beds complete an elegant aspect.

On passing the quay, you cross the Seine by means of the celebrated Pont Alexandre which takes you in a direct line to the Esplanade of the Invalides.

PONT ALEXANDRE III

This bridge, which is illuminated at night by 500 electric lamps, is 40 metres wide and consists of one single arch in cast steel.

The framework of this colossal enterprise rests upon massive abutments, each composed of 1500 mètres of stone and cement.

At each corner of the bridge, is an ornamented column crowned by the mythic figures of Pegasus and Fame; the pedestals of these columns being decorated by four designs representing different epochs of French art.

Wreaths, escutcheons and ornamented candelabra decorate the bridge through its length.

LE CHAMP DE MARS

To the Champ de Mars has been consigned the exhibits of the great Industrial works and Agricultural developments, Mechanics, Mines and Minerals, practical Chemistry, Cottons, Textile fabrics and Clothing, Civil engineering, the various means of Carriage and Transport, Alimentary and Agricultural productions, Electrical improvements.

Two rows of Palaces, constructed on one general plan, but characterising nevertheless the various groups, extend to the right and the left between the Avenues de Suffren and La Bourdonnais.

These buildings border the central Avenue which leads, through a series of charming gardens from the tower of 300 metres to the Château d'Eau and the Palais de l'Electricité. They consist of vast halls with double galleries.

The first galleries are devoted to the Exhibition of Products and are arrived at by numerous staircases and mechanical appliances for facilitating ascent. They communicate one with another to the porticoes of the Château d'Eau.

Having passed underneath the tower, which opens like an immense gateway upon the Champ de Mars, one finds, on the right, the Palace of Literature, Sciences and Arts, Education and Instruction, which contains the history of human knowledge; the Palace of Civil Engineering and methods of Transport, which shows clearly and by documents the progress in France and in all parts of the Globe of engineering art; the Palace of Chemical Industry, the exhibits of which demonstrate the transformation effected in the industrial world by modern science.

Facing these buildings, on the other side of the Champ de Mars, is the Palace of Machinery, equally interesting with its collection of inventions, ancient and modern, powerful and ingenious; further along the Palace of Cottons, Textile fabrics and Clothing; ing; and finally, close to the tower, the Palace of Mines and Minerals. The Palace of Cottons, Textile fabrics and Clothing is worthy of special notice.

PALAIS DES FILS ET TISSUS

On the side of the Avenue de la Bourdonnais, on the ground-floor, facing Entrance 16, and in class 85, is the exhibit of the Dresses and Mantles produced by the Bon Marché.

The similar exhibit, in 1889, attracted great attention and was then awarded the Gold Medal.

From a distance, there is nothing to draw particular attention to this exhibit; but, on approaching it, one is most agreeably surprised by the marvels composing it.

Its attraction is not in rich silks with grand designs, of a difficult and complicated fabrication, nor of those heavy

The splendid christening robes and other dresses of the baby, guimpes, bibs, tiny shoes, ornamented caps and charlottes, by the aid of which our dear little ones appear so pretty, form a most attracting ensemble.

VITRINE DE LINGERIE

One might imagine that these exhibits were in reality a selection made on the eve of the celebrated Exposition de Blanc of the Bon Marché, which, each year, is considered quite an event by ladies of all classes.

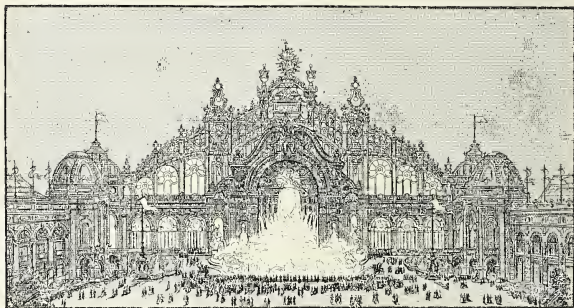

They know, thanks to this vast centre of business, how to provide themselves in all confidence with a stock, at economical prices, of this class of goods, the production of which furnishes employment, throughout the year, to the entire population of various provinces of France.

In the same class, in an adjoining show-case, may be admired a series of elegant cravats and ties, of a variety of colours at once charming and artistic, and of a perfect harmony, along with a collection of gentlemen's shirts, of an irreproachable cut and style.

After this interesting visit, we must make one to the Palais de l'Electricité, at the end of the Champ de Mars, which in the evening is illuminated by thousands of various coloured lamps and from which appear to flow out, in jets of fire, from a fairy grotto, the luminous cascades of the Château d'Eau.

The cascade, which gushes out from the centre of the arched roof, falls a distance of 30 metres into a series of basins : its effect is marvellous, and by night and by day, produces a spectacle not easily forgotten.

PALAIS DE L'ÉLECTRICITÉ ET CHATEAU D'EAU

Communicating with the Palais de l'Électricité, is the Salle des Fêtes with its gigantic dome illuminated by 5 000 incandescent lamps and encircled by an arcade ; the niches of which produce a most happy effect, corresponding as they do with the cardinal points of the compass and representing sceneries from the North, South, East and West.

SALLE DES FÊTES

Under the dome is an amphitheatre capable of seating 6 000 people.

The entire building can accommodate 25 000 people.

In the centre of the hall is a circular course ; the balustrades which surround the first galleries are ornamented by 36 statues, carrying lamps, and symbolising the 36 different countries represented at the exhibition.

Three grand bays, with communicating porticoes, divide the Salle des Fêtes from the halls of the Agricultural and Alimentary exhibits ; the ornamentation of these porticoes honours Agriculture by wild flowers, blue bells and poppies ; and Production by various fruits and their foliage.

It is in this Salle des Fêtes, the largest and the most beautiful in the world, that the inauguration of the exhibition has taken place; and it is there that the prizes will be awarded.

To the right and left, for the pleasure of epicures, are grouped the innumerable products of the earth which serve to nourish us and quench our thirst.

The disposition of these galleries is altogether harmonious and everywhere may be found mechanical appliances for conducting the visitor without any fatigue from the ground to the first floor.

LE TROCADÉRO

Fronting the Champ de Mars, across the pont d'Iéna, the Trocadéro appears as a varied but picturesque assemblage of Algerian Mosques, Russian isbas, Chinese tea houses and pagodas: Indian, Chinese and Cambodian, the whole dominated by arrow topped minarets.

Algeria occupies, at the commencement of the Pont d'Iéna, the place of honour on this beautiful site of the Trocadéro, the sloping of which gives greater effect to the picturesqueness of the constructions.

Mr. Ballu, the eminent architect, has really constructed a veritable Algerian town.

Tunis is alongside, covering a superficial area of 4 000 square metres.

It is an evocation of the most picturesque monuments of Northern Africa. The principal building is the faithful reproduction of the Mosque of Sidi Mahrez; it is devoted to the agricultural exhibit of the colony.

The map is a detailed historical representation of the Trocadéro area in Paris. It shows the Bois de St. Cloud at the top, with the Trocadéro Palace (Palais du Trocadéro) and the Eiffel Tower (Tour Eiffel) visible. The map is oriented with the Bois de St. Cloud at the top and the Seine river at the bottom. Key features include the Trocadéro Palace, the Eiffel Tower, and the Bois de St. Cloud. The map is labeled with various streets and landmarks, including Avenue du Trocadéro, Avenue de la Bourdonnais, and Avenue de la Grande Armée. The map is also labeled with various districts and neighborhoods, including Trocadéro, Concorde, and Champs-Élysées. The map is a historical representation of the area, showing the layout of the Bois de St. Cloud and the surrounding urban area.

To the left of this building, the rue des Souks descends towards the Seine and leads to the Mosque reserved for the mussulman worship.

UNE RUE ARABE

It is a reproduction of the Mosque of Sidi Maklouf at Kef.

Further on will be seen the grand Mosque of Sfax.

The Moorish Café of Sidi Ber-Said, a door of Sousse, the mosque of the barber of Kairouan, the pavilion of Manouba: these are, amongst the well known Tunisian buildings, the principal fragments of native art.

We are now in the section of French colonies and protectorates.

The colonies of France produce wonderful and inexhaustible resources and this exhibition demonstrates what has been done in the past and the results which, by enterprise, may be obtained in the future.

The Congo, the Coast of Ivory, Somalia, Dahomey, Guadeloupe, French Guinea, Guyana, French India and Indo China, this latter divided into four groups: CochinChina, Tonkin, Annam and Cambodge, which, last attracts attention by the reproduction of the royal fairy pagoda of Pnom-Penh; Madagascar, with its panorama of the taking of Tananariva; Martinico, the islands of Mayotta and Comora, New-Caledonia, Oceania, the islands of Reunion, St-Pierre and Miquelon, Senegalia and the Soudan, constitute a most picturesque exhibition.

The colonies of foreign states are grouped alongside those of France, and their installation is remarkable.

The palace of Siberia occupies a site of 6000 square metres and is in part a reproduction of the Kremlin.

China, British India, Egypt, Japan, Dutch India and the Transvaal are fittingly represented.

PALAIS DES ARMÉES DE TERRE ET DE MER

This grand edifice, preceded by the Palais du Mexique, and of which a portion is devoted to Hygiène, is situated in the space comprised between the bridges of Alma and Iéna. The feature which immediately strikes the eye is a magnificent doorway without staircase, a vast arch separating the two parts and to which seems to belong the footbridge thrown across the Seine from the Quai d'Orsay to the Quai Debilly.

On either side, is a high tower, the two being connected by an embattled wall.

The decorations and ornaments are composed of military allegories.

The left extremity of the building forms a rotunda of 20 metres

PALAIS DE LA NAVIGATION DE COMMERCE

indiameter and there is found an open staircase, greatly resembling that in the court of honour of the Château de Blois.

At the right extremity is a square tower.

In the Grand Hall is installed the military balloon. Every kind of engine of modern warfare is there collected.

The French exhibits, remarkable by their glorious souvenirs, occupy the first section of the Palace up to the footbridge, from which extends the military exhibition of other powers. Following the river, we find the Palais de la Navigation de Commerce which is of elegant architecture, and further along the Palais des Forêts, Chasse, Pêche et Cueillette.

PALAIS DE L'ÉCONOMIE SOCIALE ET DES CONGRÈS

Situated on the right bank of the Seine, this Palace encloses Group XVI which is dedicated to Social Economy, Health preservation and Public assistance; the interior arrangements of this edifice present every desirable convenience: spacious and well lighted halls; a gallery of a 100 metres serving as a promenade and three large halls, each capable of accommodating 800 to a 1,000 persons.

Divided into 12 sections are the numerous problems interesting humanity with an examination of all social questions, from the apprenticeship of the young workman to the retiring pension of the old man; the participation in profits, syndicates, assurances, workmen's accidents, regulation and security of workrooms, benefit societies.

The Bon Marché figures admirably in classes 102 and 109.

Monsieur Boucicaut founded, the 31st of July 1876, a provident Fund, in which to day, all the employees of his house, counting 5 years service, participate.

Since its foundation, this Fund has distributed nearly a million and a half francs.

It is supported by means of sums furnished annually by the profits of the house; and it works without any deduction from salaries.

On the 31st of July 1899 this Fund amounted in capital to 3,125,947 francs with 2,741 participants, which, with the sums already distributed, totalled up to 4,576,574 francs.

Madame Boucicaut further conceived the generous idea of founding a retiring Pension Fund; and on the 4th of August 1885 she established a "Caisse de Retraite" for the purpose of furnishing annuities, varying from 600 to 1,500 francs, in favour of the employees counting 20 years service in the Bon Marché.

This Fund likewise works without any deduction from salaries. Its capital, on the 1st of January 1899, was of 6.751.685 francs; it was then providing 208 annuities amounting to 164.190 francs. The future of this Fund is assured by the personal endowments of Madame Boucicaut and by the addition of a certain part of the annual profits of the Establishment, which, upon the proposition of the directors, was voted by the shareholders, in general meeting, unanimously and by acclamation. The accumulated capital derived from this source amounts to 2.508.525 francs 80 centimes.

A third Fund was established in 1892, in view of aiding the workmen and workwomen of the Bon Marché, by temporary and renewable assistance; as well as by retiring pensions. This Fund, like those preceding, is kept up by the liberality of the Establishment without any deduction from wages.

On the 31st of January 1899, its capital amounted to 438.484 francs derived from donations of the directors and shareholders and from the attribution of a certain part of the annual profits of the House. Whilst speaking of the benevolent Institutions of the Bon Marché; a few words may be said about its origin and organisation.

ORIGIN OF THE “ BON MARCHÉ ”

In 1863, Monsieur Boucicaut became sole proprietor of the house Au Bon Marché, where he had entered ten years before as partner. At that time, the house was of comparatively small importance and afforded employment but to a small number of assistants.

A series of innovations in the direction of the different departments, of ameliorations in the assistants condition and the carrying out in practice of the most scrupulous fairness in business had, however, during this short space of ten years, drawn together a connection and produced results already considerable in their extent.

In 1869, the foundation stone of the present edifice was laid. Since that epoch, the enlargements and extensions successively necessitated by the augmentation of a perpetually increasing business, have transformed the Bon Marché into an establishment unique in the world (1).

Monsieur Boucicaut arrived at this degree of prosperity by consecrating and devoting himself entirely to his preconceived work. His principle was to invest all realized profits in the extension of his business.

As irrefutable proof of his good will and faith towards his customers, he initiated the system of taking back and refunding the price of any object, which after reflection does not perfectly please the customer.

The system of selling everything at a minimum profit and of a thoroughly reliable quality, such was in its simplicity the rule traced out by Monsieur Boucicaut and from which the Bon Marché has never departed.

He was supported by a superior staff of employees, chosen with care, governed paternally and organized by a just rule according advancement for service rendered, and allowing each one to aspire to the most important positions.

Meanwhile, an interest allowed on each particular sale, assures perfect fairness in the attribution of salaries.

All assistants are recommended to be most obliging and to show the greatest politeness to visitors whether they are desirous of purchasing or exchanging an article or simply requiring information.

The Provident Fund, founded by Monsieur Boucicaut, and the Retiring Pension Fund allow all assistants to await with confidence the days of old age. Nor has the moral and intellectual condition of the employees been neglected. Evening classes comprising the study of the English language, vocal and instrumental music and Fencing have been founded for their benefit.

The young women, employed in the House, are particularly the object of a paternal solicitude; they are lodged in the dependances situated, 16, rue de Babylone. A large sitting and recreation room is at their disposition, where they unite in the evening, as in a family, and organize certain festivities among themselves. Such is the Bon Marché, taken in its “ensemble”, with its powerful life of labour, sustained by its “Unity”.

ENTRANCE RUE DE SÈVRES

(1) The BON MARCHÉ, already the largest dry goods business in the world, has been yet more considerably enlarged, and is one of the most remarkable sights of Paris.

The two regretted Founders are dead, their work accomplished, but they leave behind them the tender memories of their unprecedented generousities.

READING ROOM

Those, who have succeeded Monsieur and Madame Boucicaut in their great work, maintain in their integrity the principles which have assured the success of the House.

They follow carefully the traditions left them by Monsieur and Madame Boucicaut and add spontaneously many other benefits for perpetuating the memory of the Founders.

Monsieur Boucicaut founded a reading room for the public, and instituted a Picture and Sculpture Gallery for the purpose of enabling artists to exhibit, free of all charge, their works and of allowing them to enter into direct relation with the numerous customers of the Bon Marché (1).

All the assistants have their meals on the premise; and are served in different dining-rooms as follows :

- 1^o Superintendants and employees ;
- 2^o Ladies.
- 3^o Porters and Servants ;
- 4^o Coachmen.

The principal dining-room, which can hold 1 000 people, is ventilated by 80 windows ; its total length is of 120 metres and is lighted by 130 incandescent lamps.

Since the last modifications, the cooking is mostly done by steam :

9 enormous cooking-boilers serve to that purpose ;

(1) Visitors who are desirous of being shown over the Bon Marché and its dependances are respectfully requested to be present in the Reading-Room at 3.30 p. m. A superintendent Interpreter, specially appointed, will accompany such visitors throughout the different departments.

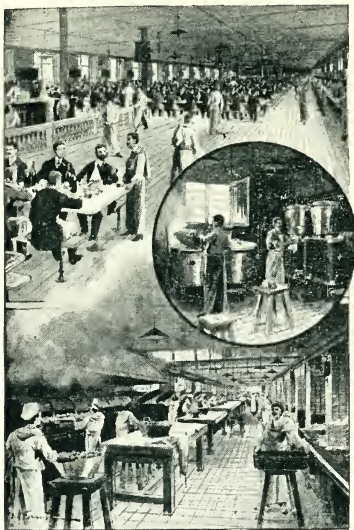

3 contain 800 ; 2 others contain 450, and 4 over 300 litres or French quarts.

Are also worthy of notice : the grills, upon which 600 steaks or chops can be cooked at a time ; a special system allowing to fry over 800 kilogrammes of potatoes ; special ovens for the cooking of eggs and a steam stove for the purpose of warming plates.

By way of a special apparatus, 300 litres of coffee can be made in 40 minutes.

Each employee has the right to two meals a day, consisting in the morning of a dish of meat, vegetables, dessert ; and in the evening of soup, a dish of meat, vegetables, dessert and salad, which is served all the year round. They have also the right to half a bottle of wine or a bottle of beer at each meal. The food is the same for all employees, irrespective of the situation they may hold. The House gives all facilities to assistants, whose health requires a special diet and allows them gratuitously any special food prescribed by the doctor.

DINING ROOM, KITCHENS

GENERAL VIEW OF STABLES AND COACH HOUSES

The stables and coach houses of the Bon Marché are situated in the rues Duroc and Masseran.

They contain 120 vehicles and 150 horses as well as electric automobiles. These may be visited on applying to the attendant in charge.

PARIS

At the UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION OF 1900, the BON MARCHÉ figures in :

CLASS 71 : Artistic furniture. — Interior decoration. — Upholstery.

CLASS 85 : Dresses and Mantles.

CLASS 86 : Lingerie and linen underwear for Ladies, Gents and Children.

CLASS 102-109 : SOCIAL ECONOMY : Salaries. — Participation in profits. — Provident Institutions.

AT THE INVALIDES, rue de Constantine, Entrance 27 bis, is the pavilion of the BON MARCHÉ, specially affected to furniture and interior decoration.

LES PALAIS DES NATIONS

One of the most ingenious ideas of this exhibition is that of not having classed geographically the situation of its splendid palaces.

LE PALAIS DE L'ITALIE

This produces a most picturesque ensemble, without in any way detracting from the grand lines of architectural art; for each nation represented has striven to the utmost in reproducing its most beautiful national edifice. These buildings form a line of palaces from the bridge of the Invalides to that of Alma, justly designated, rue des Nations.

Starting from the bridge of the Invalides, the first palace is that of Italy, which is a vast building following the lines of architecture of the Palais des Doges and Saint-Marc at Venice.

After the striking palace of Turkey, we arrive at that of the United States, which gives, by its gigantic proportions, the idea of the dome of the Panthéon (51 mètres in height); it is certainly the most useful and the most comfortable.

LE PALAIS DES ÉTATS-UNIS

The American may imagine he has not left his own country, for his desire for information will be fully satisfied, each day the operations and currents of the exchanges of New York and Chicago are telegraphed to him. Alongside this modern palace, Austria produces an architectural marvel exhibiting, in their most remarkable aspects, the celebrated palaces of Vienna.

Portugal, Peru, Bosnia and Persia rival each other in originality.

A further interesting specimen of architecture, is that of the pavilion of Hungary, in the middle age style.

England is represented by an excellent reproduction of

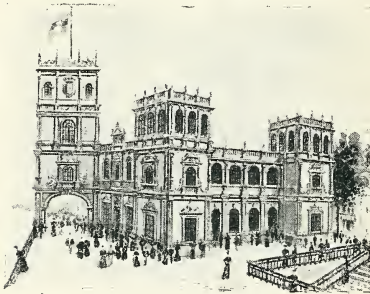

LE PALAIS DE LA GRANDE BRETAGNE

Kingston-House, a princely residence of the xvith century.

Belgium does not fail to charm us by an edifice, designed in the purest taste, after its Town Hall of Audenarde. Norway, Luxembourg, Finland, Bulgaria attract us by constructions appropriate to the taste of their several countries. The German palace draws at once forcible attention by its scientific edification, recalling its most beautiful national monuments; but the surprise is great when, in the interior, one finds the French Chefs d'Œuvre of the xviith and xviiith centuries, in furniture and pictures, derived from the imperial collections of Berlin and Potsdam.

LE PALAIS DE L'ESPAGNE

Spain presents to us a building of a national character, in which, we find evident traces of the fine and marvellous works of art left them by the Moors.

We terminate this visit by admiring the pretty constructions of Roumania, Monaco, Sweden, Greece and Servia.

ATTRACTIONS DIVERSES

Under this heading, we speak of all that completes the gaiety and picturesqueness of this wonderful Exhibition.

The Rue de Paris, which, upon the Cours la Reine, commences at the back of the Pavillon de la Ville de Paris and extends to the Palais des Congrès, is unquestionably,

We will commence our stroll the near est point to the Pont the Fin de Siècle », down it from Alexandre.

LE VIEUX PARIS

Here we find la Maison du Rire, les Bonshommes Guillaume, la Maison à l'envers; and upon the quay the Aquarium of Paris. These attractions are described in detail in the illustrated Guide of the Bon Marché. At the Pont de l'Alma, we see the artistic outline of Vieux Paris. This resuscitation, the work of Monsieur Robida, groups in an artistic manner the most interesting objects of the middle ages. The superb Porte Saint-Michel which gives access to the Place du Pré-aux-Clercs. This is the Quartier des Écoles. Here you see the Maison aux Piliers, the first Hôtel de Ville of the City, the birth place of Molière, the residence of Nicolas Flamel and those of Renaudot and des Estienne, the celebrated printers: a tower of the Louvre dominates this place. Following on are the Rues des Remparts and des Vieilles-Écoles, the church of Saint-Julien-des-Ménétriers, built in the XIIIth century, the sinister pillory of Saint-Germain-des-Prés, the quarter of the Halles, the Grand Chatelet; the Pont-au-Change, with its numerous shops, the famous Rue de la Foire-Saint-Laurent and finally the Palais with its hall and lengthy windows, adjoining the Cour de la Sainte-Chapelle.

Continuing on the right embankment, we arrive at the Trocadéro where the attractions are most varied :

The Voyages animés and its views of the most beautiful places of France, the Exposition Minière, which shows the complete working of a mine with its interesting interior life; the Monde souterrain, with its underground habitations, grottos and caves, forms an archæological completion. The panorama of the Mission Marchand reproduces its most emotional phases.

A Diorama shows us also scenes and views from the Isles of Oceana, Mayotta, the Coast of Somalia, Saint Pierre and Miquelon, giving us a knowledge of these countries, which, although far away, are nevertheless parts of France; alongside the Exposition Algérienne; a Stéréorama allows of a magic voyage along the Mediteranean Coast. At the Pont d'Iéna, an agreeable surprise awaits the visitor acquainted with the former bare aspect of the banks of the Seine at this point; he will see there to day vast constructions: l'Andalousie au temps des Maures; and a little further along, at the end of the Passy foot-bridge, immense and veritable modern palaces: the Grands Hôtels du Trocadéro, specially arranged and furnished for the time of the Exhibition and for the purpose of affording visitors every comfort.

The installation of the 1800 rooms has been effected in a simple but elegant style by the Bon Marché.

Crossing the bridge, we recognize, under its new colours of orange and gold, an old acquaintance: the tower of 306 metres.

The principal outlines of the tower are illuminated by 9.000 incandescent lamps, which, with their reflectors, produce a most curious scintillation.

The elevators have undergone important and most useful modifications.

A staircaise, specially reserved for the descent, has been recently constructed.

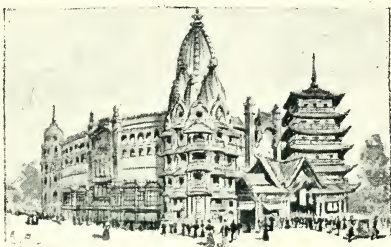

It is estimated that 60.000 visitors could be accommodated by the elevators, during a day of ten hours, that is to say 30.000 to the first stage, 20.000 to the second and 10.000 to the third.

PALAIS DE L'OPTIQUE

The immense surrounding space is dedicated to the most interesting and varied attractions. We must not omit to admire the superb ensemble of the gardens which environ the buildings erected around this monument.

Here we find the Palais de la Femme, wherein is exposed all that taste can create for feminine adornment; the Cinéorama the Maréorama, the Panorama trans- atlantique, the Château Tyrolien which produce vividly the effects of an actual voyage. Let us leave the earth for a moment and penetrate into the Globe Céleste, where a most interesting spectacle awaits us. On our return to the Champ-de-Mars, Venise à Paris will draw all admirers of the picturesque; alongside, the Palais de l'Optique forms a unique attraction, with its immense telescope of 200 feet in length and 6 1/2 feet in diameter. There is to be seen also, on this side of the tower, the pavilions of Morocco and Equador; passing through the delicious gardens underneath the tower, the Palais des Manufactures de l'État is the first that we find; from the pavilion of the Kingdom of Siam, we go to the panorama of the Tour du Monde, the exterior of which represents a variety of Eastern styles brought into agreeable harmony.

A visit to this Palace is in fact a voyage to the Extreme Orient.

The Club Alpin is installed in a manner befitting its object; the admiration has full scope in the Palais Lumineux, where everything including curtains and carpets is made of glass; we finish by the Palais du Costume, the exhibition of which forms the synthesis of the Mode féminine, of all styles and epochs.

We have held in reserve the Village Suisse.

In this veritable valley, in miniature, one will find a salutary repose after the vast and rapid journey, which must be gone through for the purpose of seeing all the marvels of this Exhibition of 1900.

The Big Wheel alongside completes, in an original manner, these wonderful attractions and one may there enjoy a splendid panorama.

“ L'EXPOSITION ” A VINCENNES

L'Exposition Annexe, of Vincennes, occupies a great space round the lac Daumesnil: a circumference of 112 hectares (270 acres). In this portion of the Exhibition, is grouped everything concerning, Railways, Automobiles, Workmen's dwellings, Life saving apparatuses, Aerial navigation, and Sport.

Numerous international physical and sporting contests will be held there.

EXPLANATIONS FOR USING THE RIBBON-MAP

The streets, squares ("places"), quais, etc., mentioned in the vocabulary, are followed by two numbers corresponding :

1stly. To the number marked in the margin of the map.

2ndly. To the number marked on the ribbon.

To find instantly any street, you have only to stretch the ribbon so as to COVER THE NUMBER IN THE MARGIN. The street sought for will be found UNDER THE NUMBER OF THE RIBBON.

Examp. : THE BON MARCHÉ WAREHOUSE, margin 75, ribbon 29.
THE ROUCICAUT HOSPITAL, margin 100, ribbon 18.

The Streets, Passages and Arcades which have been omitted on the plan, figure nevertheless in the vocabulary and are marked with an asterisk. Their situation is indicated by means of the ribbon.
